IKE TALKS RIGHTS BILL WITH RUSSELL

Assures South Punitive Action Won't Be Taken

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower assured the South today that the administration has no intention of launching a "punitive expedition" under its proposed civil rights law.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) leader of the southern fight against the controversial rights bill, took the opposition's case to the White House today.

He apparently failed to win Eisenhower's agreement to any major compromise. But he said the President's mind is "not closed" to a "clarifying" amendment.

"I found no intention of purpose on his part to go on any punitive expedition against the South," the Georgia senator said after the 50-minute meeting.

Declines Details

Russell declined to go into details of what kind of amendment the President would consider. Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland said after a White House session Tuesday that his party would oppose confining the bill to a simple protection of voting rights.

Russell requested the meeting with the President after Eisenhower told his news conference last week that he did not understand certain clauses in the administration's civil rights bill. The President also had said he could not understand Russell's fears about the bill.

"We both have a much better understanding of the other's views," Russell said after the conference.

But he refused to say whether a civil rights compromise now is more likely.

He said that in the course of his discussion with the President he emphasized some implications of the pending measure that Eisenhower "hadn't considered."

The meeting came as Senate Republicans tightened party discipline and sought to maintain a solid front in the face of Democratic disunity over the bill.

The GOP leaders, it was reported, think the Republican Party now has established its claim to sponsorship of the civil rights bill and will reap credit for its passage if it breaks through an expected filibuster and reaches the White House.

After Negro Vote

This in turn, they believe, will mean further gains for the GOP among Negro voters who began deserting the Democratic standard for the GOP ticket in 1956. In order to maintain this position they feel they must maintain outward unity behind the measure.

The Senate today was debating a motion by Senate GOP Leader William F. Knowland (Calif.) to consider the House-approved version of the administration's civil rights bill.

The bill provides for a bipartisan commission to study civil rights problems and report to the President and Congress by Sept. 30, 1958. It would also empower the attorney general to seek court injunctions against violations or anticipated violations of civil rights. Persons disregarding such injunctions would be liable to a fine and jail sentence by a federal judge without a jury trial. Opponents contend this would be perverting the civil laws to deprive persons of their constitutional right of jury trial.

Here's Summary Of Main Issues In Rights Debate

WASHINGTON (UP)—Summary of main issues in the Senate debate on civil rights

Purpose of Bill

To protect the civil rights of persons within the jurisdiction of the United States. Proponents contend its primary purpose is to protect voting rights of Negroes in the South. Opponents claim its language is broad enough to permit use of troops to enforce racial integration in schools and other public places.

Basis For Fight

Supporters contend the legislation is necessary for protection of constitutional rights of all Americans regardless of race. Opponents contend it gives the federal government, in the person of the attorney general, "autocratic" powers to enforce civil rights as he sees fit and break down the southern social system based on separation of races.

Jury Trial

The bill would empower the attorney general, through civil law procedure, to obtain federal court injunctions against violations or anticipated violations of civil rights. Persons disregarding such injunctions would be liable to a fine and jail sentence by a federal judge without a jury trial. Opponents contend this would be perverting the civil laws to deprive persons of their constitutional right of jury trial.

Plan Campaign Against School Vandalism Here

Windows Broken; Director Says Curfew Should Be Enforced

The Monessen School Board last night called for an immediate halt to the "excessive destruction" of school properties.

Dr. Joseph Pallone, superintendent, said the "vandalism is very serious."

He told the board that most of the damage is being done to windows, woodwork and fences.

"We just spent nearly $90 to replace windows broken by these vandals. Something must be done about this destruction immediately," Dr. Pallone said.

He added that the $90 does not include the labor used to replace the broken windows.

President John Lancas suggested that the board meet with Chief of Police Michael Kuvinka in an effort to stop the wave of destruction that is hitting nearly every school building in the city.

Dr. Pallone said most of the damage is being done after the playgrounds are closed. This statement prompted Lancas to suggest that the police car make spot checks of playgrounds after they are closed.

Director Alex Kachmarik said much of this damage "would not happen if the 10 p. m. curfew was being enforced by police. Our law enforcement is very poor in this respect."

Director Romeo Furio said he believes the best way to meet this situation "is to apprehend the offenders and hand out some sort of punishment. Just making them pay for the windows won't correct this situation."

He added that this destruction is "hitting the taxpayer."

The board then agreed to follow Lancas' suggestion to arrange a meeting with Kuvinka.

Most of last night's three-hour meeting centered on the opening of a lengthy list of bids for school improvements. The board awarded a total of $32,705.40 in contracts. It rejected several bids because they were "out of line" and decided to readvertise.

The board awarded a contract for $18,800 to the McGinnis, Smith and McGinnis Co., of Pittsburgh, to install gas furnaces in the Vocational and Ben Franklin schools. Dr. Pallone said the present coal furnaces are obsolete and have not been providing sufficient heat.

Termite Battle

The Termitol Co., of Pittsburgh, was awarded a $2,900 contract to rid the high school and Jefferson school of termites. The contract includes a five-year guarantee.

The Westmoreland Paving Company's bid of $5,618.90 was $6.10 lower than the Burrell Construction Company's bid for the asphalt paving program at the Vocational and High Schools. The project will cover 15,000 square feet. Most of the paving will be done at the playground area at the Vocational School.

Burroughs Corp., of Pittsburgh, was awarded a contract to furnish the school district with a modern accounting machine. Its bid was $5,386.50 compared to the $5,645 bid submitted by National Cash Register.

Four bids were submitted for a 60 passenger school bus. Submitting bids were: Graham GMC, $6,675; Murphy Ford Sales, $6,990; John L. Gibson, $6,814.67, and International, $6,995. Murphy also submitted a second bid of $6,690.

The brief speaking program will conclude at 8:30 and guests will then form a motorcade to the airport. There will be a state police escort.

Legion Members Vote Against Club Purchase

A resolution calling for the purchase of the Park Casino night club by members of the Monessen Thomas McKee Post 28, American Legion, was overwhelmingly defeated last night.

The vote was 71 to 9.

The resolution, which had been given the required three readings at previous Legion meetings, called for the purchase of the Grand Blvd. night club for $100,000.

It also stipulated that the present home at Fourth St. and Donner Ave. be mortgaged or sold so that the Park Casino purchase could be accomplished.

Speaking were Gilfert M. Mihalich, attorney, who outlined the proposed purchase and Jack Beck, chairman of the building committee. Boris Pishko, historian, presided in the absence of Commander Peter T. Stieska.

Powder Puff Derby Race Comes to End

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — The 11th annual women's Powder Puff Derby came to end today with a 5 p.m. (EDT) deadline set for completion of the 2,567 mile cross country flight from San Mateol Calif., to North Philadelphia Airport.

A total of 6 planes have touched down h. with 13 arriving Tuesday and the 13 remaining planes schedule. to arrive today.

ZINC WORKS TO CLOSE — Here's a dramatic view of the Donora Zinc Works, which will suspend smelting operations around November 1. A lone stack belches smoke toward the eroded Webster hill side. Built 42 years ago, the Zinc Works was the object of several damage suits for allegedly polluting the air. During the 1948 Donora smog disaster, an accusing finger was pointed at the Zinc Works, but a team of government investigaters never claimed it had evidence to put the blame directly on the smelting of zinc. Mixed reactions greeted the U. S. Steel Corp's decisions to close the controversial plant. Tempering the satisfaction of those who have been agitating for the close of the Zinc Works is the fact that at least 450 men will lose their jobs.

Local Building Interest Sold

Mrs. Susan Boyd, a former Monessen resident now living in Clearwater, Fla., has sold her half interest in the Frantz and Boyd building at 535 Donner Ave., Monessen, to Irwin Sanes and Herman Albert, local businessman. The two men reportedly paid $25,300.

The two-story building, which now houses the Monessen Plumbing and Electric Co. and offices and apartments, was built in 1907, according to records at the Monessen Realty Co., which handled the transaction.

The men's clothing store of Frantz and Boyd was the first commercial occupant of the building.

Fayette Judges Hospital Patients

Two Fayette County judges have been confined to hospitals.

President Judge W. Russell Carr is awaiting an operation for stomach ulcers in Pittsburgh's Presbyterian Hospital, while Judge John S. Morrow is a patient in Mt. Sinai Hospital, Milwaukee, Wis., for treatment of an ear infection.

Bulganin Eased Out of Top Place in Russian Hierarchy

WASHINGTON (UP) — Experts piecing the recent Kremlin shake-up together said today Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Soviet Communist Party boss Nikita Khrushchev apparently failed to see eye-to-eye at an important stage of the party's power battle.

If Bulganian made a miscue the old Bolshevik may barely have escaped being purged himself.

Some evidence indicating a recent change in Bulganin's stature in the Soviet Communist Party hierarchy has been detected even though he is now in Czechoslovakia on tour with Khrushchev.

Bulganin has been eased out of first place in outlining Soviet industrial policies and progress at Communist Party Central Committee meetings.

The Tables Turned

In July, 1955, and again in December, 1956, Bulganin gave important reports on Soviet industry and management at Central Committee meetings. Khrushchev apparently barely survived the December meeting when Mikhail G. Pervukhin was put in charge of a new Soviet industrial set-up.

When the Communist leaders met again in February, however, Khrushchev overturned the December decisions. Bulganin has not been the prime spokesman on industrial matters since the December meeting.

There is evidence Bulganin is more conservative than Khrushchev. At Leningrad last week end Bulganin delivered a much milder speech than Khrushchev. He also referred to Georgi M. Malenkov, Vyacheslav M. Molotov and Lazar M. Kaganovich as "comrades."

Malenkov, Molotov and Kaganovich now may face expulsion from the Communist Party and even criminal charges following their ouster from their top Kremlin posts, officials here believed.

They said if Khrushchev moves to liquidate any of the three it would indicate he was bidding for absolute power on the Stalin pat-

Right-of-way Battle Fought By West Penn

An injunction suit has been filed by the West Penn Power Co. asking the court to restrain a South Huntingdon couple and their son from interfering with the operation of a power line right-of-way.

The suit, filed in Westmoreland County Court, names as defendants, William R. Gaut, his wife Mary S., and their son, William R. Gaut, Jr.

The complaint states that the West Penn effected a right-of-way agreement with the Gauts on Dec. 10, 1936, giving permission to build and maintain a transmission system for its power lines across the Gaut property.

Accordingly, the suit states, West Penn erected two towers on the land from which are suspended electrical power lines.

In April, 1957, West Penn sent workmen into the Gaut lands to clear brush and other undergrowth from the right-of-way and again on May 1, a crew was again sent in to complete the work.

However, the suit states, when West Penn employes went to finish the project they were prevented from doing so by William R. Gaut Jr. the son, whom the complaint charges threatened the workmen.

The injunction bill asks the court to restrain the Gauts from interfering with use of the right-of-way No hearing date has been set for the court.

A truck and car were involved in a minor crash on Schoonmaker Ave. between Fourth and Fifth streets yesterday at 3:50 p. m., Monessen police reported today.

Sam DiBuono, of 541 Rostraver St., was driving the truck and Melvin Zubritsky, of 660 Braddock Ave., the car.

Neither driver would assume responsibility.

Pittsburgh Steel Foreman Dies While at Work

A resident of Monessen for 46 years, Mr. Penich was a member of the Croatian Club and the Croatian Fraternal Union, of Monessen. He also held membership in the Slovene National Benefit Society.

He is survived by his wife, Barbara; a son, George Jr., of Monessen; a daughter, Helen, of Jacksonville, Fla.; a brother Stephen, in Canada and two brothers and two sisters in Yugoslavia.

Ellises Given Legal Custody Of Hildy McCoy

(Picture on Page 8)

MIAMI (UP) — A Florida Circuit judge today awarded the Melvin B. Ellises legal custody of 6-year-old Hildy McCoy, ending the Jewish couple's five - year interfaith fight to keep the child they have raised from infancy.

Judge John Prunty ruled that the Ellises, who fled their home and business in Massachusetts rather than give up the freckled-faced youngster, are "proper persons" to adopt Hildy, whose natural mother was a Roman Catholic.

The Ellises were not in court when Judge Prunty announced his decision. But Mrs. Ellis, reached by telephone, sobbed.

"Our attorney just telephoned me that it is now Hildy Ellis. It has been a long time — six long years."

"I can't wait until I can tell my husband the good news," she added.

Ellis was out looking over a new home that they plan to occupy soon.

The Florida Welfare Department on Monday recommended that the Ellises be given the child. The report said that to "separate the child from the only parents she has ever known. . .would do serious damage to her emotional security." The report cited the Ellises s "excellent reputation, adequate income and better than average home" in recommending the adoption.

On Monday, Judge Prunty termed the Ellises "suitable" parents for little Hildy but withheld the decision until now in order to study the possible effect of Massachusetts court decrees against the Ellises' adoption of Hildy on the child's future.

Stieska Decision Has No Bearing on Others

The Westmoreland County court decree Monday which declared that John R. Stieska had won the Republican mayoralty nomination over Mayor Hugo J. Parente, will have no bearing on the outcome of the Republican write-in votes cast for several other Monessen offices, it was learned unofficially today.

Stieska was declared the winner after he appealed a decision by the County Election Board which rejected his petition to cumulate Republican write-in votes cast for him on voting machines under varied versions of his name in the May 21 primary.

Everett D. Noel, of the County Commissioners' office in Greensburg, said today that the court ruling handed down by Judge Richard D. Laird in Stieska's favor will have "no connection with the rest of the candidates" who conducted write-in campaigns on the Republican ticket.

The Election Board, he said, had ruled that write-in votes can only be tabulated for correct names and spellings.

Stieska was the only candidate to appeal the board's ruling.

Noel said that since the other candidates made no appeal, they will have to abide by the board's ruling that votes will not be cumulated. Many of the candidates' names were misspelled or abbreviated.

The Republican nominations yet to be decided are for the offices of council, treasurer, controller and school director.

Noel said the board began the official count of write-in votes for these offices today.

The confused situation arose in Monessen when no Republicans sought City offices and nearly all Democratic candidates sought Republican write-in votes.

Seek OK to Destroy Gambling Material

Gambling material seized during raids in Washington County the past two years will probably be burned sometime after August 5.

District Attorney Michael A. Hanna has petitioned the court to destroy the material. The court, in turn, has set August 5 as the date for any of the alleged owners to dispute Hanna's petition.

Since all of the defendants have already pleaded guilty to various charges of gambling, it is unlikely that there will be any serious challenges to the district attorney's request.

In addition to numbers slips, decks of cards, dice, pinball machines, adding machines and punchboards, Hanna also asked in his petition to be relieved of $478.56 confiscated during raids.

All defendants listed in the petition have had their cases disposed of. They include:

John Joseph Zdilla, Monessen; Clarence Nelson, of Donora in two different instances, Guistino DeFelicis, Donora; Tony Patterson, Joffre, George W. Tate, Washington; Anthony Pallaria, Canonsburg, R. D. 2, Joseph Lucciola, Weaverstown; Patsy Marcantonio, Canonsburg: Phillip and Michael Joseph, Canonsburg; Wiley Hill, Lawrence; William G. Mills, McDonald, R. Girard Views Differ

WASHINGTON (UP) — The secret Defense Department file on William S. Girard shows that the Army specialist third class claimed he fired from the hip and over the head of the Japanese woman he killed.

Girard also said he did not believe the empty cartridge he fired would hurt anyone even if it hit them.

He acknowledged he knew the grenade launcher he used to hurl the cartridge like a missile was accurate and that it would fire an empty shell "quite a ways."

But the file also contains a sworn statement by Girard's Army buddy, Specialist 3-c Victor M. Nickel, that Girard fired from the shoulder after aiming directly at the woman.

Nickel, who was with Girard when Girard fired the fatal shot, also said he and Girard first coaxed the woman and other Japanese civilians close enough so Girard "could take a shot at them."

A copy of the secret Defense Department file—10 pages in all—was made available to the United Press today.

Other copies were given to the Supreme Court as part of the evidence on which it could base its decision on whether Girard should be tried by a U. S. Army court martial or a Japanese court.

Eight Supreme Court justices conferred for two and a half hours on the case Tuesday morning and another two hours in the afternoon. There was no indication when the court will rule. The ninth justice, William O. Douglas, is on a tour of the near east.

'Trout' Battle Ends Up with Both in Jail

GREENSBURG, Pa. (UP) — Patrolman Thomas Carnes landed a couple "trout" Tuesday night after a battle that shouldn't happen to a fisherman, let alone a policeman.

Edward Trout, 24, Greensburg, arrived at Westmoreland Hospital with a self-inflicted gash on his wrist. While he was being sewed up, his brother, Phillip, 22, who had brought him to the hospital, became disorderly and Carnes arrived on the scene.

While the officer was handcuffing Phillip, Edward took off, clad only in his trousers. Carnes caught up with the patched-up Edward in South Greensburg and started to drive him to the Westmoreland County Jail, but Edward leaped from the car and again fled.

It took until almost midnight for police to catch up with Edward again. Both Trouts ended up in jail, charged with disorderly conduct.

Missile Fuel Plant Under Construction

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (UP)—Construction of a new 36 million dollar plant to produce high energy fuel that is expected to greatly increase the range of missiles and jet aircraft was under way here today by the Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp.

The plant is being built under an Air Force contract.

In announcing the company's plan Tuesday, executive vice president W. C. Foster said a new billion dollar industry will be created within the next decade through development of high energy jet fuels.

Olin achieved a breakthrough in production of chemical fuels which generate intense heat needed by advanced jet and missile engines three years ago and for the past month has been supplying the fuels to the Air Force on a "limited" basis.

The new plant, scheduled to be in production within 20 months, will increase present output "many times" the current volume, an Air Force spokesman said.

An "interim" plant, scheduled for completion at the end of this year for the Navy, also is being built by Olin to triple production of its present pilot plant.

Foster said the fuels now in production can increase the range and speed of missiles and jet aircraft up to 40 per cent. The result of five years' research and two years' production testing, he said, the fuels are expected to play a major role in development of the commercial jet age.

as did GMC, $6,550. The bids were tabled.

The board rejected bids for exterior painting and caulking of seven schools and also for the waterproofing of the west wall of Washington School. The board said all bids were "out of line."

Informed by one of the bidders that the Washington School wall "needs more than waterproofing," the board authorized Dr. Pallone to engage the services of an engineer to inspect the Washington School and other schools.

Three Applications

The State Tax Equalization Board informed the board that the 1956 market value of real property amounted to $80,653,000. The assessed valuation was listed at $21,572,875 for a 26.7 per cent assessed valuation to market value.

Three persons applied for positions. They were Ann V. Mongart, of Monessen, cafeteria worker; Mrs. Elizabeth Priselac, of California, elementary teacher, and Mrs. Barbara Onda, cafeteria.

Mary Jane McCallum, of California, was hired as a music teacher for Ben Franklin School.

The Monessen Jaycees were authorized to use the High School for a regional meeting Sunday.

Liner's Passengers Are Unloaded Today

HAMILTON, Bermuda (UP)—Cargo fuel and passengers were being unloaded today from the British liner Reina Del Pacifico to lighten the vessel before new attempts are made to pull her free from a coral reef trap.

There was growing belief in local shipping circles that the 17,782-ton luury liner may never be refloated. The Reina Del Pacifico, carrying some 700 passengers, jammed hard aground between two coral reefs leading out of Hamilton harbor Monday and has resisted efforts to free since.

Planning Group Meets at Airport

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Planning officials from Allegheny, Washington, Greene and Beaver counties met at Greater Pittsburgh Airport Tuesday night to discuss mutual problems relating to redevelopment.

The group voted to join the Greater Pittsburgh Airport Area Development Association in working for a program of industrial expansion and highways development.

Kinzua Dam Another Step on Way

WASHINGTON (UP)—The proposed Kinzua Dam and reservoir project on the Allegheny River above Warren, Pa., has cleared its first hurdle in the Senate.

The Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Public Works late Tuesday approved at a closed meeting a budget item for start of construction on the big flood control project.

The subcommittee's action virtually assured it would be included in the "Civil Functions" appropriations bill which the Senate will vote on before admournment this summer.

The full Appropriations Committee must first pass on the bill, but in the past it rarely has made any changes in the findings of the subcommittee.

The subcommittee would not disclose the figure but it was understood to have voted the one million dollars requested to start construction of the Kinzua project.

The Kinzua Dam item already has passed the House, where it had been heatedly opposed by the members of the New York delegation.

Senator Edward Martin of Pennsylvania, senior Republican member of the Appropriations subcommittee, took part in the closed meeting at which the project was approved.

The subcommittee also approved $4,500,000 for New Cumberland Lock and Dam on the Ohio River and $5,000,000 for Hildebrand Lock and Dam on the Monongahela River in West Virginia.

san commission to investigate alleged violations of voting rights and study "legal developments which constitute a denial" of civil rights, a new civil rights division in the Justice Department, authority for the government to seek injunctions or other civil court action against conspiracies to deprive persons of their civil rights, and the same authority to halt violations or threatened violations of Negro voting rights by private individuals as well as public officials.

Senate leaders hoped for a vote on Knowland's motion this weekend or early next week. The expected favorable vote would clear the way for a long drawn - out debate — or filibuster — on the bill itself.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon gave the bill's supporters a minor victory. He ruled that a technical error in the House bill—since corrected — didn't matter. He said the correction was retroactive.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) who didn't press his objection to Nixon's ruling, had indicated earlier he might use the error in parliamentary maneuvering against Senate action on the bill.

Lias Claims Withdrawn

WHEELING, W. Va. (UP)—The widow of the late Charles J. Margiotti, Pittsburgh attorney, has withdrawn two claims totalling $338,630 against William G. Lias.

The claims were withdrawn on the eve of a Federal Court hearing on 12 claims against the former Wheeling Down race track owner.

The hearings opened before Judge Harry E. Watkins today.

Mrs. Denise K. Margiotti's attorney said agreement was reached with Lias and his family to "mutually resolve their problems without taking court action."

Mrs. Margiotti had instituted the proceedings to collect back fees due her late husband for his work as chief counsel for Lias during his lengthy, unsuccessful income tax dispute with the government.

Charge 'Double-cross' in Judicial Pension Plan

HARRISBURG (UP)—A veteran House Democratic leader charged today a legislative "double-cross" was engineered to clear a liberal pension plan for Pennsylvania judges through the General Assembly.

Former House Speaker Hiram G. Andrews (Cambria) said the judges retirement program was part of a legislative "package" which was to clear the Assembly together. Andrews identified the remainder of the "package" as two bills which would have allowed the state Supreme Court to assign lower court judges to other judicial districts to expedite crowded dockets. Both died in Senate Republican controlled committees.

Andrews asserted "... I had abundant reason to believe that the judges' pension plan and the Supreme Court bills would travel as a package in both the House and the Senate."

He said the bills were killed in the Senate by a "powerful lobby." Andrews added, "The judges say they were not responsible for the sabotaging and, of course, the judges are honorable men."

The 80-year-old assistant Democratic House floor leader during the past session, said he would have opposed the entire package had he known only the pension bill would reach Gov. George M. Leader who signed it recently.

"...The theory back of the judges' pension bill is that the pensions are so generous, the judges incapable of rendering a full time service by reasons of either physical or mental infirmaties will promptly retire and go on a pension," Andrews said The measure allows the jurists to retire at 60 and receive up to 80 per cent of their annual pay.

"The bill represents an expenditure of $2,800,000—and for the purpose of getting rid of judges who can serve the Commonwealth to better purpose by retiring than they can through continued service," Andrews charged.

Zhukov Emerging as Key Factor Behind Power Shift in Russia

LONDON (UP) — Red Army Marshal Georgi Zhukov is rapidly emerging as the key factor behind the power shift in Soviet leadership, top diplomatic sources said today. He is expected to assume a top position soon—possibly the premiership.

The jut-jawed defense minister, conqueror of Berlin and wartime friend of President Eisenhower, played an important role in saving Party Boss Nikita Khrushchev in last week's Kremlin revolt and Khrushchev depends on his loyalty for survival, the sources said.

Zhukov was not considered a man seeking a military dictatorship, and not a "Napoleonic type." But he is being pushed upward by the constant increase in strength of the Red army over which he has unchallenged control, diplomats said.

It was not known definitely he would replace Premier Marshal Nikolai Bulganin. But Bulganin was believed under a cloud and on his way out because he sympathized with Vyacheslav M. Molotov last week when Zhukov saved Khrushchev from the would-be Molotov coup.

Diplomatic observers said to make the Khrushchev - Bulganin split less obvious Bulganin might be kicked upstairs—that he might take the place of President Klimenti Voroshilov who would be dropped. Voroshilov also backed Molotov.

Marshal Zhukov

It was noted that Khrushchev took protocol precedence over Bulganin today in Prague and was greeted—as he evidently expected to be greeted—as "leader" of the Soviet delegation. Bulganin played this role in their previous junkets abroad.

The diplomatic sources said that Zhukov could topple Khrushchev even now by withdrawing his support since the Red army has great power and apparently is the only major stable power factor in Russia.

The sources said Zhukov was not expected to challenge Khrushchev in a struggle for the leadership since neither he nor the army wants this now. Zhukov was described as a man concerned chiefly with the military and political strength of Russia itself rather than his personal position.

But he is shooting toward the top by the inexorable pressure of shifting power, the diplomatic dispatches said.

All diplomatic dispatches stressed the key part played by the army in "saving" Khrushchev and that whoever aims now at the Soviet leadership must make sure of Red army—and Zhukov's—support.

Zhukov has been gaining influence steadily in the past two years. He emerged as a powerful public figure for the first time since the war at the Geneva conference two years ago when he met with President Eisenhower. Since then he and Eisenhower have corresponded.

Zhukov is understood to favor closer cooperation with the West and is anxious to avoid any East-West clash in which he may feel the West would emerge the victor.

Gas Rate Increases Rejected

Two Area Firms Are Affected

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Public Utility Commission has rejected a request by Manufacturers Light and Heat Co., Pittsburgh, for an immediate $1,523,000 annual natural gas rate increase.

The commission also suspended proposals by two other western Pennsylvania utilities to raise gas rates by $1,500,000 a year. In addition to Manufacturers, Peoples Natural Gas Co, Pittsburgh, and North Penn Gas Co., Port Allegany, sought increases to offset boosts in the wholesale price of natural gas purchased from pipeline companies.

The wholesale price increases, filed by the suppliers with the Federal Power Commission, go into effect net Sunday.

Peoples sought a $1,269,149 hike effective July 15. North Penn wanted a $229,702 boost, effective July 22. Both were suspended si months for investigation and public hearings by the PUC.

The PUC is now holding hearings on an overall $6,479,000 increase which Manufacturers wanted to put in effect last May for its 247,000 consumers in 25 counties.

Request Denied

Filed in two parts, the boost was suspended until Nov. 12-13. Mnufacturers asked the PUC to lift suspension of one proposed boost totaling $1,523,000 pending completion of hearings and a final order. The utility said it needed the revenue to recover the higher cost of gas.

The PUC denied the request and continued to consider the proposal today along with the second hike of $4,956,000 sought by Manufacturers.

Manufacturers furnishes service in Adams, Allegheny, Armstrong, Beaver, Bedford, Butler, Chester Clarion Clearfield Elk Fayette Franklin, Fulton, Greene, Indiana, Jefferson Lawrence McKean, Mercer, Somerset, Venango, Warren, Washington, Westmoreland and York counties.

Peoples provides service for 248,000 customers in Allegheny, Armstrong, Beaver, Blair, Butler, Cambria, Clarion, ayette, Greene and Westmoreland counties.

North Penn serves 18,800 users in Bradford, Clarion, Forest, Jefferson McKean, Potter, Tioga and Venango counties.

County Planning Group Draws Up Set of Rules, Regulations

A sub-committee of the Westmoreland County Planning Commission has drawn up a set of rules and regulations governing the subdivisions of lands in the county.

These rules were discussed on Monday during a lengthy meeting of the full Commission in Greensburg. There seemed to be no objections, but formal approval was withhld until the August meeting.

The proposed rules were drawn up be a committee composed of Commission Secretary Robert P. DeLotto, Ben R. Hebrank and Albert Chenet. They told the Commission that planning regulations for nearby counties were studied at some length before drawing up their report.

Avra N. Pershing, Jr., chairman of the Commission, said that the proposed regulations will be printed in time for the next meeting. Copies will probably be mailed to contractors for their approval or criticism, Pershing said.

In general, the basic regulations to be acted on are these:

A minimum of 12 feet easements for rights-of-way for public utilities such as electrical power, and sewage shall be provided in each sub-division.

Each sub-division shall provide the County Planning Commission with a plan of its sanitary disposal system, sewage or septic, the latter as approved by the Pennsylvania Department of Health.

No streets in a sub-division shall be less than 40 or 50 feet in width and where a main highway system runs through a section the minimum width should be 60 feet.

Lots should have a minimum frontage of a street of 70 feet and a total area of not less than 9,800 feet except where the topography of the land interferes.

Buildings should be set back a minimum of 30 feet on a lot except on a state or township road where they should be not less than 40 feet.

Some discussions of the location of buildings on corner lots developed, but it was decided that all corner lots in a sub-division should be wider and that buildings on the side or parallel streets should be placed about 30 feet to provide appropriate setbacks.

$10 Filing Fee

A charge of $10 filing fee will be required for each application of a sub-division approved by the County Planning Commission, plus 25 cents per lot to cover the processing.

Chairman Pershing said that the set of standards, yet to be adopted, will apply to all new sub-divisions unless a municipality has its own standards adopted. The County Planning Commission can refuse to approve a plan to be recorded, it was pointed out during the meeting.

Secretary DeLotto read a letter of resignation from Joseph Bucci, of Vandergrift. Bucci later reconsidered and Chairman Pershing authorized the secretary to notify Mr. Bucci that the commission members would be happy if he remained.

Suggests Pay

Chairman Pershing also suggested during the meeting that Secretary DeLotto has been doing much extra work in preparing a large mass of data for commission study as well as considerable correspondence and it was decided by the commission that the county commissioners be advised they should pay the New Kensington man some compensation.

During the meeting, Heinz Fenichel, the new director of the Central Regional Planning Commission of Westmoreland County, discussed some phases of the proposed new setup.

Those attending the meeting in addition to Chairman Pershing were Secretary DeLotto, commission members Ben R. Hebrank, Clark Queer, Mt. Pleasant; C. W Cline, a new member of Arnold, Albert Chenet, Latrobe.

Local Jaycees To Host Zone Meeting Here

Monessen Jaycees will be host to the first Zone 6 meeting of the Pennsylvania Junior Chamber of Commerce on Sunday. Jaycees and their wives from 25 chapters in Western Pennsylvania are expected to attend.

Ray Rosfeld, regional state vice president, attended a recent meeting of the local group to assist in making plans for the session.

The meeting will be conducted at Monessen High School starting at 1 p. m. with registration. Jack Campbell, national director, has prepared the agenda, and State President Grover Gouker will be present along with other state officers.

Instruction in the proper procedure for conducting Jaycee meetings will highlight the program.

While the men are in a business session there will be a program prepared for their wives. A guest speaker will talk on interior decorating.

At the conclusion of the two sessions the Jaycees and wives will be entertained at dinner at the Slovak Home.

An award will be made to the chapter traveling the most "man" miles and will be presented during the general assembly.

The Court Decision

THE DECISION reached by Judge Richard D. Laird of Westmoreland County in the mixed-up cases involving write-in votes in the recent primary elections in Monessen and Arnold is the one which any fair-minded layman would reach using his common sense.

Judge Laird simply decided that where the intent of the voter was plain beyond doubt, his vote should be counted regardless of how he spelled the name of the candidate. This has been the legal standard for many years in elections where paper ballots were used. And it would make no sense to have a different standard where voting machines are used.

The decision, unless it is upset on appeal, means that John R. Stieska will be the Republican candidate for mayor of Monessen, having defeated Mayor Parente for that honor, 170 to 149.

Mr. Stieska has indicated that he will accept the nomination and make a campaign, which would in effect be a return engagement since Mayor Parente defeated Mr. Stieska for the Democratic nomination.

The primary campaign was not so enlightening that we look forward to a repetition of it in the fall. But it is not often that the voters have two opportunities in the same year to choose between the same two candidates, and perhaps that makes the prospect worthwhile.

Whatever ensues, however, let us hope that Monessen can somehow soon develop something that at least looks like a two-party system. It is nothing short of disgraceful that an American community of 20,000 people has to act as though it heard about democracy the day before yesterday and one of the so-called major parties has to leave its nominations to be decided by a scramble among the opposition candidates.

The Zinc Works

THE NEWS that the U. S. Steel Corp. will discontinue the smelting of zinc at its Donora Zinc Works next Nov. 1 will be received with mixed feelings throughout the Monongahela Valley.

About 450 men have been employed in this operation, and nobody could rejoice if they lose their jobs and cannot find new ones elsewhere. We feel sure U. S. Steel will make a sincere effort to absorb as many as possible in its other plants in this area.

But the Zinc Works for two generations has contaminated the atmosphere of this district in a particularly destructive and unhealthful manner. Obnoxious fumes and smoke have literally wiped out property values in a wide radius. And there is some respectable scientific opinion to the effect that these fumes have had a bad effect on public health and perhaps, in the famous smog of 1948, even killed some people.

Knowing this, we can't help but think that the Valley will be well rid of this operation in the long run. We can even think that the Zinc Works may have cost the Valley more jobs than it ever supplied, and the cost to the Donora-Webster area in terms of general community welfare is probably incalculable.

We hope the people of the Valley, particularly those in the Donora vicinity, will not receive the U. S. Steel announcement about the Zinc Works with hand-wringing despondency. We think there is definitely a silver lining to this cloud.

All the Same

WE ARE unable to work up much enthusiasm for the view, now prevalent in some American and Allied circles, that because Khrushchev has some of his erstwhile playmates approximately where he wants them, there is a better chance for something like a satisfactory arrangement between Soviet Communism and the West.

Although so eminent an authority as Winston Churchill is said to hold this view, it seems to us to depend too much on the assumption — which we find hard to accept — that one set of thugs is to be preferred to another set of thugs.

Who can honestly think that Khrushchev is less determined than Malenkov or Molotov or Stalin to destroy everything America represents in the world? And who can think that Khrushchev would not resort to any means he thought would achieve this end?

The differences in the Kremlin so far as the outside world is concerned are never over basic principles but only over methods. And it is beyond doubt that Khrushchev is getting ready to lynch Malenkov, not because Khrushchev is a man of more delicate sensibilities where war is concerned, but only because Malenkov was trying to get Khrushchev's job.

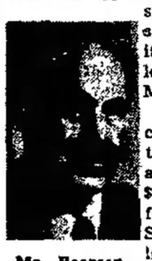
Let's let these gangsters fool each other, but let's not let them fool us.

Merry-Go-Round—

U. S. Steel Asks River Channel

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — While U. S. Steel was touching off a chain reaction of inflation which will hit everything from bobby pins to automobiles, it was simultaneously pulling wires for a 40-foot channel in the upper Delaware River so bigger ore ships can reach its giant Fairless Works at Morrisville, Pa.



Mr. Pearson

Deepening the channel will cost the taxpayers an estimated $91,738,000 — a free gift to U. S. Steel because it is the only company planning to use super ore carriers on the upper Delaware.

This costly project, benefitting one private company, was quietly pushed through the House Appropriations Committee by Chairman Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.). It is now being considered by a Senate Appropriations subcommittee headed by Sen. Allen Ellender (D., La.)

Property owners along the Delaware claim a deeper channel will increase the flood menace. They point out that the last damaging flood in August, 1955, was caused by hurricane-driven water forced up the Delaware. A 40-foot channel would permit more flood water to be driven up the river. If the taxpayers have $91,738,000 to spare, they say, it should be spent on flood control for the benefit of all the property owners.

The White House is incensed over the way U. S. Steel thumbed its nose at President Eisenhower by hiking the price of steel one day after his appeal against inflation. It remains to be seen, however, whether the White House will oppose spending $91,738,000 to dredge a private, dead-end passageway up the Delaware River for the same U. S. Steel. Observers note that in the past Ike has frequently rewarded his opponents in the field of big business, even appointed Ben Fairless, a backstage power in U. S. Steel, to a high advisory post in his administration.

U. S. Steel Dividends

Here's what a tough time U. S. Steel has had during the past ten years. If you invested $10,000 in U. S. Steel in 1947, you will find its value today has shot up to $61,506 During that same ten-year period, it paid dividends of $12,774.

Thus the income and the value added together total $74,280. If you deduct your original investment of $10,000, you received a profit during the ten-year period of $64,280.

Caught Off Base

Last week's crucial Kremlin crisis caught the State Department completely unprepared. Its star ambassador Chip Bohlen, had been transferred to the Philippines through pure whim, and the new ambassador, Llewellyn Thompson, was still "winding up affairs" in Austria. Ike was golfing at Gettysburg. The Secretary of State was vacationing at Duck Island.

The new American counselor, Richard Davis, had arrived in Moscow only a few weeks before. He's a good man, but was in no position to begin reporting on the most difficult and secret government operations in the world. Because of his low rank, Khrushchev and Bulganin did not come to the 4th of July reception at the American Embassy, as would have been the case if an American ambassador were in charge. It is at these receptions that some of the best leaks occur in Moscow.

The State Department was also caught off base in Hungary last fall. The rioting broke out with the American minister absent.

Note — Ambassador Bohlen was transferred from Russia to the Philippines not because he wanted it but on the order of John Foster Dulles. Bohlen is one of the few career diplomats who speaks Russian fluently.

Performing Air Force

The Radio City Music Hall is dickering with the Air Force for a 24-man drill team to replace the famed Rockettes in New York this summer.

A six-week engagement is being discussed, with an Air Force drum and bugle corps possibly going along to provide musical accompaniment.

Air Force officers are intrigued by the proposal because it would give them a good chance for recruiting publicity. They say Music Hall spokesmen have promised to allow posters and displays in the theater's lobby, built around the theme of "1957 — Golden Anniversary of the Air Force."

Checking on the 'Fall Out'

From Washington—

Mao: How's that Again?

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

For some time now we have been reading about Mao Tse-tung's famous "February speech," about how the Chinese Communist leader is carving out some reputedly unorthodox and new ideological ground to the dismay of the men of the Kremlin.

Mr. Drummond

More often than not it sounded mighty nice.

When first information about the speech began to leak, considerable attention was focused upon Mao's graceful (but not original) phrase, "let a hundred blossoms flower."

More and more of the speech gradually seeped through the Communist grapevines and the two main points which were most often made in appraising the speech were these:

That Mao is admitting that "contradictions" — that is, real differences of opinion and interest — exist between the Chinese people and the Communist dictatorship, and is saying that there can be somewhat more tolerance of these contradictions in Red China than there has been in the Soviet Union.

That Chinese Communism is becoming more mellow, more liberal, is moving toward a wider use of the democratic process.

Experts Errored

Now that all of Mao's 17,000 words are available, it seems to me we ought to take a hard look at the two principal implications most often attributed to the speech. I have tried to do so and I cannot escape the conclusion that some of the experts knocked the ball deep into foul territory.

It is certainly true that Mao is frankly saying that "contradictions" between "the people" and the dictatorship exist in any Communist regime — a thesis which Moscow resists and which Khrushchev categorically rejected in his recent TV performance in remarking, "we have no such contradictions."

But to read into Mao's speech any idea that Chinese Communism is getting mellow toward the contradictors or is reaching out toward one smitch of democracy in any meaningful sense, either in free speech or free elections, is buncombe.

It isn't so and we ought not to let Mao's mellifluous hundred flowers fool us into thinking it is so.

Will Liquidate Opponents

After you have read this speech forward and backward, up and down, and placed in its proper spot every vital reservation which Mao attached to his bland phrase, "let a hundred schools of thought contend," it is perfectly clear that the Chinese red regime still rests rigidly and ruthlessly upon the pyramid of three propositions:

1 — That those Chinese who don't want Communism should have no rights atall, that they should be suppressed, crushed and liquidated.

2 — That there can and should be some freedom of discussion and dissent among "the people," that is, among those who want Communism or will accept it but want to see it managed a little differently.

3 — That if the pro-Communist contradictors become too obstreperous, the dictatorship will no longer consider them "people," will classify them as "enemies of the people" — fit only for liquidation.

This may have a slight touch of the mellow as compared to the terror and torture of Stalinism, but it has about as much relation to freedom and democracy as a tattered copy of a Grandma Moses has to a Rembrandt original.

What Mao is really saying, with flowers, is that freedom of dissent is all right as long as there isn't much freedom nor much dissent.

Mao put it this way: "Democracy operates within the ranks of the people while the working class, uniting with all those who enjoy civil rights, enforces the dictatorship over the reactionary classes and all those who the nation's non-Communist representatives today that they might be classed as 'enemies of the people' if they persisted in criticism resist socialist transformation and oppose socialist construction."

In other words, all the Chinese people have the civil right to accept Communism.

"What should our policy be toward non-Maxist ideas?" asks Mao. His answer: "We simply deprive them (their advocates) of their freedom of speech."

That's simple. That's it; that's Mao's "liberal democracy."

And only last week Reuters reported the following from Peiping: "Premier Chou en-Lai warned the nation's non-Communist representatives today that they might be classed as 'enemies of the people' if they persisted in criticism of the regime."

Mao proclaims freedom for the people, but if the people criticize the regime very much, they lose their status as people.

The Views of Others—

Rackets and Churches

(From the Valley Daily News, Tarentum)

Are the rackets trying to invade the churches of Westmoreland County?

One wonders after reading a statement by the Rev. J. Nelson Jackaway of Belle Vernon who was recently ousted from the pastorate of the Rehoboth and Sewickley Presbyterian Churches by a commission of Presbytery.

The Rev. Mr. Jackaway first asserted that his removal came after he preached a sermon in which he charged that certain political elements were trying to bring about his dismissal because of his activities in Operation Crusade. This organization a few years ago waged an aggressive battle against Westmoreland racketeers and corrupt politicians. During the last year or two it has been rather inactive.

Later he said that his part in Operation Crusade was not the direct result of his dismissal but that certain members of the Redstone Presbytery Commission which heard his case had said that mention of Crusade's fight against crime and corruption should not be made in the pulpit.

Such weak-kneed, spineless men have no place on a church commission. For if the war for decency cannot be waged in the pulpit, then where in the world can it be conducted?

Several years ago a Greensburg clergyman who had taken a part in the program of Operation Crusade resigned his pulpit, charging pressure from members of his flock who objected to his taking an open stand against vice.

It is hard to believe that the racketeering element could be so brazen as to try to silence clergymen. Even more amazing is it that there are church members, apparently influential church members, who are on friendly terms with organized crime. Yet it must be remembered that the power of the rackets in Westmoreland County is vast and that its currents run deep.

With millions of dollars at stake every year, powerful and wealthy Westmoreland racketeers have in the past and will continue in the future to use every means in their power to silence their enemies. They haven't hesitated to corrupt police departments and to influence the courts. What reason is there to believe they have any greater regard for the church?

If racketeers are powerful enough to corrupt the church, what hope have we?

Newsmen Kept Secrets During World War II

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UP)—The idea that special legislation is needed to prevent newsmen from endangering the national security is a puzzler for the paunchy World War I veterans of Adm. Ernie Kings's Arlington County Commandos.

Chairman Loyd Wright of the Commission on Government Security wants such a law. It would impose a fine and imprisonment on newsmen found guilty of exposing government information classified as secret or top secret.

Mr. Wilson

The chairman has not come up with much specific proof of need for what is known around town as "Wright's Law." The little known story of the admiral's commandos is pretty good evidence that news reporters can keep top secrets. The commandos were a slack outfit, short on spit and polish. The late Fleet Admiral Ernest Joseph King's fellow officers will never believe the wartime Navy boss ever could have taken up with their likes.

King did, however, and how and why make one of the better hidden stories of the late, great war.

Prestige Hard Hit

Arlington is a county in Virginia across the Potomac from Washington. The commandos were organized in October, 1942, shortly after Navy prestige was hard hit again with announcement of the loss of five cruisers in the Solomons Islands. Three were American — the brightly new Quincy, Vincennes and Astoria.

The late Cornelius Bull, a former newsman and husband of the admiral's niece, sensed that the Navy was in for some hard going. Bull took a chance.

Despite his knowledge that next to Japanese and Germans, King most disliked newsmen, Neely Bull proposed to the admiral that he meet a hand-picked group of Washington reporters.

Within a fortnight a chilly meeting took place in Bull's Arlington County home. King talked a little, explained a bit and stiffly answered questions.

Met Throughout War

Perhaps to the admiral's surprise, news of the secret meeting was not all over town within a single day, or ever. Bull arranged another some weeks later. King was warmer by then. A third meeting came after a lesser interval.

They continued throughout the war in an atmosphere of real warmth and friendship. King's frankness sometimes was frightening. The newsmen got a lot of information and guidance from King during the war years and the admiral unquestionably got the Navy's story before the public in its best light.

The commandos alone knew how and why Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was picked to lead the Normandy invasion. And there was the day when FDR was half-minded to kick Gen. George C. Marshall upstairs to some kind of global command, exact duties unknown.

King didn't like the idea and rallied his commandos in opposition, leading the charge in person. The blast of unfavorable publicity was beautiful to behold. The project folded. And of all the top secrets King divulged over a friendly can of beer, none ever leaked.

Behind The News—

Shake-up May Please Tito, Gomulka, Mao

By CHARLES M. McCANN

The Kremlin shake-up is likely to improve Soviet Russia's relations with Yugoslavia, Poland and Communist China.

President Tito of Yugoslavia, Communist leader Wladyslaw Gomulka of Poland and Chinese Red leader Mao Tse-Tung support strongly the contention that there can be "different roads to socialism."

Mr. McCann

That means, of course, that is not necessary for Communist countries to follow blindly the lead of Soviet Russia.

To a great extent, the victory of Soviet Communist leader Nikita S. Khrushchev over his enemies in the Russian collective dictatorship is a victory for Tito, Gomulka and Mao also.

Tito broke away from Russian domination in 1948. Gomulka won a great measure of independence as the result of his skillful course in last fall's Polish Revolt. Mao never has regarded China as a Soviet satellite.

Some Disagreement

There have been sharp divergencies between these three leaders and the Russians on matters of Communist doctrine.

There has been intermittent feuding between Tito and Soviet leaders for nine years. Mao criticized Russia's brutal suppression of the Hungarian revolt and gave possibly decisive support to Gomulka in Poland's rebellion against Russian domination.

Two of the three biggest Soviet leaders purged in the Kremlin shake-up were old-line "Stalinists" who held that Moscow was the supreme fountain-head of Communist wisdom.

This seems to make it likely that there will be much closer cooperation in future between the Russians and the supporters of "national" Communism.

Mao Tse - Tung is expected to be in Warsaw on July 22 for a state visit to Poland. Unless he changes his mind as the result of the purge, he will not visit Moscow until after he leaves Poland, even though he must pass through Russia to get there. The Russians did not like that idea and tried hard to get him to give Moscow priority.

Now there is every indication that when Mao does visit Moscow, his visit will be much more friendly than was expected.

It will be surprising if Tito does not visit Moscow soon for a get-together, or if Khrushchev and Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin do not visit him in Belgrade.

There are likely to be some important eevelopments during the present visit of Khrushchev and Bulganin to Czechoslovakia.

Balkans Under Stalinists

Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Romania, Bulgaria and Albania are all under the rule of hidebound "Stalinist" leaders. Premier Janos Kadar of Hungary is a puppet. He necessarily follows the Moscow line but he has "Stalinist" enemies among Hungarian Communists.

So far, it has not become apparent whether there is to be a big purge of the "Stalinists" in these countries.

Some of them may be forced out. But some or all of them may succeed in getting themselves aboard the band wagon and announcing that they really have been "different roads to socialism" men all along.

The prospect of an easing up in party-line doctrine is being welcomed in Western countries. But Tito, Gomulka and Mao are all Communist dictators. Closer relations between them and the Russians may or may not ease up East-West tension.

According to Elks secretary James Destefano, the dinner will be the first in a series of social functions designed to earn money for the pool project. "We hope to break ground next year for the swimming facilities at our Elks Park Development off of State Road." said Destefano. A portion of the 43-acre site has already been cleared as a picnic spot . . .This Saturday's affair will be for Club members only. About 200 are expected.

MVL Have-nots Need Assistance

Mon Valley League Commissioner George Kuvinka has asked stronger teams in the loop which boast excessive personnel to release players so that less fortunate brethern in the circuit can make a stronger showing. Otherwise, some of the weaker entries may not finish the season . . . Brownsville's High all-around athlete the past three seasons, Jerry Sluger, may enroll at George Washington University in September . . . The Pirates' Luis Arroyo can break Roy Face's record for appearing in the most games in one season, this year. Through June 30 Arroyo had made 35 appearances, putting him two weeks ahead of Elroy's 1956 pace when he went to the hill 68 times for a Pirate mark.

Detroit University is banking on Donora's Billy Russell's ankle to respond to treatment for the coming season after slowing the former Dragon standout almost to a crawl last season. A former teammate of Billy's, Dick White, also attends the Titan school, winning a letter as a grid tackle last season . . . Clairton's Mayor Ken Stilley is the line coach at Detroit, commuting between Clairton and the Auto City weekly during the grid season.

Today's Sports Parade—

'Broke' Ex-Champion 'Ain't Mad at Nobody'

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP)—There are two moments of misery which have seared themselves into the soul of a sad - eyed little man named Sidney Walker.

The first came when he was 10-years-old and the ancient grandmother who had raised him, and wanted him to be a minister, called him to her side. Sitting in a rickety rocking chair, she told him not to cry but that she was going away.

"She sent me to the kitchen for a bowl of soup and when I came back the Lord had stole her away," he recalls, tears filling his brown eyes.

The second time of torture came 16 years later when, his kneecap shattered, he was just a washed up former lightweight champion of the world. The boxing world knew him as Beau Jack, a perpetual motion machine of the ring whose furious brown fists had earned more than 2 million dollars. And they told him that he was on the verge of being broke.

Thought About Family

"I wanted to take a gun and do something about it," he rasps, the old scar tissue flaming above the hooded eyes. "People have killed for less than that. But then I thought about my family and how they would feel if I was on my way to the electric chair."

So now, 10 years after that second moment of misery, Beau Jack feels worse about that childhood day in his grandmother's kitchen than he does about the people who fleeced him.

"I ain't mad at nobody," he says despite the fact that at 36 he is right back where he started—shining shoes.

Beau Jack was good. Not a great puncher but a lashing will o' the wisp; a tan tiger with laughing eyes who gloried in the combat and the adulation which went with it.

But then came the night in 1947 when the knee popped in Madison Square Garden and suddenly the cheers were no more. That's when Beau, after weeks in a hospital, went home to discover that he didn't have that big cushion in the bank. That's also when the laughter fled from his eyes forever.

Speed Was Gone

A year later he came back "but I wasn't no whirlwind no more." The speed was gone, cut away by the knife which had healed the leg. Beau fought four more years, retired in disgust for two and then, with 10 children to be fed, gave it one more whirl. In four bouts he realized he had "had it."

He tried training fighters who wouldn't listen. He opened a drive-in and saw it fail. So finally the world-weary kid from the Georgia cabin went back to shining shoes.

They brought Beau back to New York Tuesday ironically enough to appear on a program called "Strike It Rich." He won $500 with the help of "a lady who was real nice and gave those answers right down the alley." Beau didn't recognize her, an actress named Yvonne de Carlo, because he doesn't have the money to see many movies. But he was real grateful.

"It helps me realize cuz I was knocked down I don't have to stay down," he said hopefully.

But the eyes, which fill when he talks about his grandmother, still didn't shine.

History Says Casey Will Now Lose Flag

ST. LOUIS (UP) — If history repeats, manager Casey Stengel's New York Yankees will lose the 1957 American League pennant because he won the All-Star Game Tuesday.

The Yankees have failed to win the flag only once since Stengel began managing them. That was in 1954 when he scored his only previous All-Star victory over the National League in seven tries as manager of the American Leaguers.

Carcellas, Dackos Niters Winners

Standings show Carcellas, 12-9; A. Dackos, 12-9; B. Kunsas, 11-10; and J. Dackos, 7-14.

The average American family of four eats more than 11 pounds of meat a week.

Score Takes Wife; Awaits Return to Hill

BOYNTON BEACH, Fla (UP)—Herb Score, Cleveland's "million-dollar" southpaw, takes a wife today before starting workouts to determine how his injured eye will affect his pitching.

Father Thomas Kelley of Rosedale, N. Y., who launched Score on his baseball career, was to marry him in a High Mass ceremony at St. Mark's Catholic Church here to pretty Nancy McNamara of Lantana, Fla., whom Score met in high school.

Score, 24, was struck in the right eye in a night game at Cleveland May 7 by a line drive off the bat of Yankee Gil McDougald. It was feared at first that the 1955 rookie of the year might lose his vision in the eye, but after two months of recuperating, mostly at the home of his mother, Mrs. Anna M. Score in Lake Worth, Fla., Score was confident he could resume his mound duties with the Indians.

After a five - day honeymoon, Score and his bride will go to Cleveland Monday where the handsome, blond fireballer will undergo a thorough medical examination to determine the condition of his eye, before beginning workouts.

Brickner Set To Leave; Needs Money

Gus Brickner, the Charleroi steelworker, is scheduled to leave Sunday for the English Channel, but he isn't sure yet how he'll finance the trip.

"I have made plans to fly to England this Sunday," said Brickner. "Frankly, though, we still need some money to finance the trip."

Gus, who wants to become the first Pennsylvanian ever to conquer the Channel, said he'll know in a day or so whether the trip will have to be cancelled for lack of funds.

Alston's Two-Game Streak Snapped In 6-5 Setback

By ED SAINSBURY

ST. LOUIS (UP) — Wrong guessing and second guessing told the tale of the All-Star Game, a 6-5 win for Casey Stengel's American League team to break a two-game, victory streak by Brooklyn Dodger manager Walt Alston and the National League.

Stengel didn't want to start rookie right hander Jim Bunning of Detroit Tuesday. And he wanted to keep Boston's Ted Williams in left field for offensive punch.

He wanted to open the game with Cleveland's veteran Early Wynn, and he would have, except that Wynn pitched seven innings ~~Sunday~~ and ~~Stengel~~ feared ~~he~~ would be tired.

So Bunning was the standout of the 12 hurlers who appeared. He retired nine men in order and got credit for the win when his mates got two runs in the second inning. Wynn gave up three hits and two runs later in 1-3 of an inning.

Stengel partially carried out his strategy with Williams. He let the Boston star step to the plate four times, and he walked once and went out three times. Then, nursing a 3-2 lead, he put Chicago's Minnie Minoso into left field for defensive purposes.

Minoso Emerges Star

Minoso starred both on offense and defense. He rapped a double off the right center field wall in the ninth inning to drive home Al Kaline of Detroit with what proved to be the winning run.

Defensively, Minoso turned in two key plays. When the National League was threatening to tie in the ninth inning, Hank Foiles was on second base after a single and a walk to Gus Bell.

Don Mossi struck out Eddie Mathews and Ernie Banks lined a single to left to score Foiles easily. But Minoso played the ball expertly and when Bell tried to go to third base, Minoso threw perfectly to Frank Malzone for the second out as Banks took second.

Stengel brought in his own Yankee reliever, Bob Grim, when Gil Hodges pinch hit for the National League, and Grim threw only two pitches. The first was outside. The second was lined to left field, where Minoso made a short run to catch the ball and the game.

"If Williams had been in there," some onlookers said, "he wouldn't have made that throw and he wouldn't have caught the ball."

Alston Second Guessed

Alston was the target for the second guessers. Why didn't he order Mathews to bunt with no outs, two runs in, the tying runs on first and second?

"How'd I know Banks would hit?" the Dodger manager asked. If I had, I would have."

National League starter Curt Simmons, appearing in the All-Star Game for the third time, was the losing pitcher as he gave up a single to Mickey Mantle, a walk to Williams, a single to Vic Wertz and a walk to Yogi Berra in the second inning. Then with one run in, Lew Burdette came in. And though he got two men out, he walked Harvey Kuenn to force in another score.

Bill Skowron doubled in the sixth, advanced on Jack Sanford's wild pitch, and scored on Yogi Berra's single.

In the ninth, Billy Pierce began the winning surge with a single and he got to second when Red Schoendienst bobbled Gil McDougald's grounder for an error.

Al Leads Series 14-10

Nellie Fox sacrificed and both runners scored on Kaline's single. Mantle struck out, the only American Leaguer to do so, but Minoso's double was the finishing punch.

The National Leaguers netted two runs on singles by Willie Mays and Ed Bailey and Gus Bell's pinch double in the seventh off Wynn.

Then their rally fell short in the ninth. Stan Musial walked and Mays drove him home with a triple and scored himself on Pierce's wild pitch. That set the stage for Foiles to bat for Bailey and keep the chase alive.

It was the second victory in the last eight games for the American League and the 14th overall against 10 National League victories.

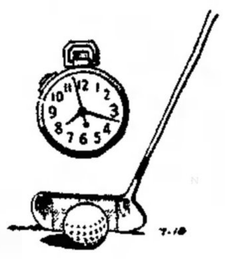
DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF



Too Much Time

Standing in a putting position for more than a few seconds is bound to cause tensing or cramping the muscles. And it's next to impossible to putt accurately when your muscles are tensed.

But it is also next to impossible to putt well unless enough time is taken for careful aiming and adjustment of stance. That creates the problem.

The solution, I am convinced, is to be found in the golfer's temperament. Some excellent putters putt very quickly — with a minimum of fuss and bother. Other excellent putters are most deliberate — both in the preliminary lining up and in making the stroke itself.

I suggest that you work it out for yourself on the practice putting green. Experiment and figure out the best procedure for you. Then stick to that method in competition on the course.

Vaughn Meets Hernandez On TV Tonight

CHICAGO (UP)—Willie Vaughn was "almost 100 per cent sure" that a store of ring savvy he has picked up in the past two years will carry him to his first victory in three clashes with Chebo Hernandez when the two middleweights fight tonight in a televised 10 - round bout at the Chicago Stadium.

The Los Angeles boxer thus far hasn't been able to do any better than draw with Hernandez. That was in their first meeting in 1953. A year later, the Mexican slugger knocked out Vaughn in the second round at Hollywood, Calif.

Vaughn's best ring effort came last March 27 when he was awarded a decision over Joey Giardello at Kansas City, Mo., and then had to settle for a draw when it was discovered one of the officials was scoring the bout under an outmoded system.

The Hernandez-Vaughn affair is a substitute match for the originally scheduled Bob Baker - Eddie Machen heavyweight 10-rounder, which was put off until July 24 when Machen came down with oriental flu.

White Sox Clobber Yankee Nine, 15-7

The White Sox moved closer to second place in the Minor League play here yesterday as they topped the Yankees, 15-7, mainly on a big third inning when nine runs crossed the platter.

An early Yankee 2-0 lead held up until the third when the Sox moved ahead to stay.

Each team used two pitchers, Raymond Roskos relieveing Andy Temoshenka of the Sox and gaining credit for the victory while John Mutschler, who went to the rescue of Floyd Faulks for the Yankees, absorbed the loss.

Temoshenka and Mark Kotys tripled for the winners while Mutschler clubbed a three-baser for the losers. Michael Kootsouradis had the only other knock going for more than one base, a double for the Yanks.

The line score follows:

White Sox	009	033—15	8 0
Yankees	200	131— 7	7 3

Temoshenka, Roskos and Kostic; Faulks, Mutschler and Vitale; 2B —Kootsouradis; 3B — Mutschler. Temoshenka and Kotys; WP — Roskos; LP — Mutschler.

Board Hikes Reserved Seat Cost 25 Cents; Gen. Admission Same

Fans will pay more to see the Monessen High football team in action this season at Memorial Stadium.

The School Board last night hiked the price of reserved seat tickets from $1 to $1.25, a boost of 25 cents.

Season tickets will again sell for $5, but there will be one less home game. In 1956, the Greyhounds played six foes at home; this year they'll play five.

General admission tickets will continue to sell for $1 but they will not be offered until all reserved seats are taken. This is a policy similar to the one now in effect at Charleroi.

The School Board devoted a good deal of its time last night to athletic matters. Here are the other sports items

SENIOR HIGH CUSTODIAN: The Board, in effect, rejected a recommendation from the athletic committee that John (Corky) DeMillion be named senior high custodian at a compensation of $400. Three directors voted yes, but a fourth John Lancas said he favored another candidate, Edward Ratica. Since it takes four votes to approve a motion, the recommendation was not adopted.

KEITH JUNIOR HIGH CUSTODIAN: Herman Keith, a student teacher who assisted with the Monessen High baseball team last season, was unanimously elected Junior High custodian.

CHANGE COACHING POLICY: The Board voted to change a long-standing policy limiting a coach to only one job in the athletic department. The amended policy will permit coaches of "minor" sports to hold two or more jobs. Director Nick Cullen voted no on the issue after moving that restrictions be removed from all coaches. There was no second to his motion.

APPROVE TRAINING MEALS: Pre-season training meals for the MHS football team were approved for the second week of practice. These meals will again be served at the Methodist Church hall.

TO PAINT LIGHTS: The Board heard that the lighting standards at Memorial Stadium already need a coat of paint. It was agreed to advertise for painting bids.

NEW BANKING BOARD: The banking board on the inner wall of the gymnasium is now insecure and will be replaced on a bid of approximately $100 from J. Riddell and Son.

APPROVE PRACTICE GAMES: The School Board approved two pre-season practice games, one home, one away, for the MHS football team.

RESTATE RADIO POLICY: Acting on a request from radio station WMBS, Uniontown, The Board refused to relax its policy of charging $100 for radio broadcasts from Memorial Stadium.

NEW TICKET BOOTH: A new ticket booth will be erected at the Memorial Stadium entrance.

MEDICAL POLICY: The school district policy is that athletes must consult the school doctor before going to their family physician. In an emergency, the head coach will make a decision with regard to medical care. If this procedure is not followed, the school district will not be responsible for medical bills.

Blackhawks Top Pirates by 7-2

It was practically all Dan Barton in the local Prep League action yesterday as the league-leading Blackhawks defeated the Hilltops, 7-2.

Barton hurled three-hit ball, fanned six batters and walked only three. In addition he clubbed a double, one of only two extra-base blows in the game, the other being credited to Mike Kunsa of the Hawks. Ken Bronson was the losing hurler despite a four-hitter as three teammate errors hurt his chances.

The victory increased the 'Hawk first-place lead over the Hilltop nine, showing a 7-1 mark to the Hillers' 5-3.

The line score follows:

Hilltops	010	000 1—2	1 3

Bronson and Bill; D. Barton and Bisceglia; 2B — D. Barton, M. Kunsa; WP — Barton.

Seeks Approval For Archie-Tony

LOS ANGELES (UP)—An attorney for singer Frank Sinatra was scheduled to go before the California Athletic Commission today to get approval for a light heavyweight title bout between Archie Moore and Tony Anthony in Hillywood Sept. 11.

Attorney Jules Covey notified Julius Helfand, chairman of the New York state Athletic Commission and a member of the World Championship Committee, that both fighters had signed.

However, the state Athletic Commission's chief enforcement officer, David Luce, commented in Sacramento that Sinatra was not a licensed promoter. He said the commission was anxious to see a world's championship bout staged in California, but would have to hold a hearing and listen to protests before it sanctioned the promotion.

Coker Coach Resort Athletic Director

George Milby, Connellsville High basketball coach, will spend the rest of the summer as athletic director at the Shawanga Lodge, third largest summer resort in the Catskill Mountains.

Milby, former Ellsworth High athlete who served as assistant athletic director at the lodge the past two summers, played for the resort team during his college days.

His duties will include arranging sports programs for guests and supervising the Shawanga team in the semi-pro cage circuit which operates each summer in the New York resort area.

Milby, who has been serving as director of the local summer basketball program, will assume his New York duties on Sunday and remain until Aug. 1.

Cro-Ams Shut Out Myford, 9-0

The Cro-Ams are obviously the class of the City Softball League.

They proved that again last night by blanking the Myfords, 9-0, on brilliant seven hit pitching by Stush Nickolich.

The veteran Cro-Am hurler was backed by timely hitting on the part of his mates who collected six doubles.

Ernie Lattanzio had three hits and Dick Neidermyer contributed a pair of doubles.

The Myfords were paced by Don O'Toole, who checked in with two singles.

The Cro-Ams now head the chase with a sporty 8-1 record. They are two and a half games in front of runner-up PNA.

Tonight's City League game will send PNA against MPSA.

Wheeling Downs Opens Summer Season Today

WHEELING, W. VA. (UP) — A 66-day summer meet opens at Wheeling Downs today, ending the longest period of idleness for the half-mile track since racing started here.

About 600 horses were on the grounds for the first meet under the track's new owners, Hazel Park Racing Assn., of Detroit, which formed the Wheeling Racing Assn., to operate the Downs.

There has been no racing here for eight months.

The Detroit group bought the track at a government auction for what many considered a bargain price of $1,780,000. Seized by the government several years ago, the track was sold to help satisfy part of a $3,280,000 income tax bill owed by the principal owner, William G. (Big Bill) Lias.

Federal Judge Harry E. Watkins, who approved the sale to Hazel Park June 28, refused to permit a spring meeting here on grounds revenues had declined during the last meet. Lias remained as general manager of the track while it was in government receivership until he exhausted legal efforts to upset tax rulings against him.

Even as the summer meetings begins, a New York group whose bid of $1,830,000 for the track was rejected by Watkins the day he approved the sale to Hazel Park, indicated an announcement would be forthcoming as to whether it would appeal Watkins' decision.

Yonkers Raceway, Inc., of Yonkers, N.Y., was turned down because Watkins said it did not give sufficient reason for entering a bid at such a late date. Bids were opened two weeks earlier.

The opening - day program included eight races — one for $2,500, one for $2,000, three for $1,100 and three for $1,000.

New General Manager Robert G. Leavitt said the minimum purse per race throughout the meet would be $1,000.

LL Vets Top Parks In Slugfest

Inclement weather cut the local Little League schedule to one game last night, the VFW nine topping Park Service, 15-12, in a slugfest.

In fact, the Vets-Service tilt was so long, the Ravens and Page Local had to postpone their game until tonight. They were scheduled to play after completion of the Vets-Park Service clash last night.

Bruce Nedrow continued his brilliant play for the losers last night but it wasn't enough. He clubbed two homers and a double, one of the round-trippers a grand-slam blow.

The Vets scored in every inning but the fifth to offset an eight-run third by the Garagemen.

Gerald Harler coaxed four walks and a single in five trips, Jim Beeler connected for three singles and Earl Stevenson doubled twice to pace the Vets' attack.

Line score follows

Park Service	308	100—12	11 3

Crusan, Cieply and Steele; Saxton, Komatz and Hotz.

In addition to the Ravens-Page Local game tonight in the American Division Monday night's games will be played in the National showing the Elks battling the Legion and CIO going against the Lions.

Majors Attendance Up Despite Shift Rumors

By JOHN GRIFFIN

NEW YORK (UP) — Despite the confusing babble about franchise shifts and all that palaver in Congress about baseball's anti-trust troubles, attendance at major-league baseball has increased 2.2 percent this season, a United Press survey disclosed today.

Nine of the 16 big league clubs, led by the world champion New York Yankees, report a boost in turnstile business. Seven others have suffered losses, with the Chicago White Sox and Pittsburgh Pirates in the biggest slump numerically. The Cleveland Indians' 22.4 percent decrease represents the biggest percentage drop - off in the majors.

The survey showed that 8,703,448 fans had attended major league games up to the three-day All Star game break-traditional halfway milestone in the season. This compared with 8,512,611 for the same number of home dates last year, a boost of 190,87.

Five of the teams showing increases were in the American League, which boasted an overall increase of 141,176 3 percent). The National League was split evenly, four teams ahead of last year and four behind, but the "senior circuit" also had an overall increase of 49,661 (1.1 percent).

The Yankees, who have battled their way out of early - season troubles to take a 2½-game in the A. L. pennant race, report an increase of 126,991 (19.9 percent) in attendance over last year. But the champions were being pressed by two other A. L. clubs, the Detroit Tigers with a 118,402 (21.8 percent) increase under new owners and the surprisingly strong Baltimore Orioles with 103,373 (21.8 percent).

The Chicago White Sox have dropped 112,580 (16 percent) since last year, and the Pirates' attendance has dropped off a whopping 108,78 3 (18 percent) from last year. It will be recalled that in early 1956 Pittsburgh fans were flocking to the park to see Dale Long swat homers at a record pace. Long has not only cooled off, but he's been traded to Chicago.

Minor League Heads Meeting With Ford Frick

By LEO H. PETERSEN

ST. LOUIS (UP) — The minor leagues, faced with a wholesale series of franchise shifts if the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants decide to go to California, met with Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick today to lay the groundwork for their future operations.

The presidents of the top seven minor leagues in the nation were summoned by Frick to the conference.

"Actually, it is an exploratory meeting, and we'll just play it by ear," Frick said. "But the minors have to be prepared for possible changes."

Those changes could be the most drastic in baseball history should the Dodgers decide to go to Los Angeles and the Giants to San Francisco. That would not only take two of the best clubs out of the Pacific Coast League, but would jeopardize three others—San Diego, Hollywood and Sacramento.

To survive, the Pacific Coast League might have to draft as many as five clubs from other minor leagues to stay in business.

It also was expected that Frick would try to sell the minor league chieftains on his new draft proposal, which the commissioner deems necessary if baseball is to circumvent any anti-trust legislation.

Under the Frick proposal, a minor league player would be subject to unrestricted major league draft after four years. Under the present regulations, only one player from each minor league club may be drafted, thus permitting the major league clugs with talent-rich farm clubs to keep their promising youngsters in the minors as long as they wish.

Stolen Gulf Maps Valued at $34,450,000

PITTSBURH (UP)—The value of geological exploration maps stolen from Gulf Oil Corp. in a weird conspiracy was placed at $34,450,000 today in new indictments returned by a federal grand jury.

U.S. Atty. D. Malcolm Anderson said latest evidence in the case showed "about 2,500" maps of the corporation, compiled from reports of geologists on potential oil deposits, had been purloined in a plot hatched between a Gulf employe and a Pittsburgh insurance agent in a coffee shop.

The government said the employe, Charles W. B. Smith removed the geological surveys from Gulf files and gave them to Charles W. Washburn, 51, Allison Park, Pa., a wealthy insurance dealer and a dabbler in gas and oil prospecting.

The latest indictment, returned Tuesday, charged Washburn took the maps to San Antonio, Tex., where they were photostated by H. Houghton Phillips, 58, scion of a Butler, Pa., oil family who had moved to Texas.

Washburn and Phillips were charged with interstate transportation of stolen property.

Indicted earlier in the map theft case were Col. Odie R. Seagraves, 70, Houston, Tex., promoter; Edward Lieberman, 30, and his brother, Emanuel Lester, 32, officials of U.S. Tackless Corp., New York, where a number of the maps were recovered by government agents, and Irving Milner, 40, a fugitive now believed to be in Canada.

40 Boy Scouts Delayed When Bus Catches Fire

MORGANTOWN, Pa. (UP) —A troop of about 40 Boy Scouts from the Johnstown, Pa., area escaped injury Tuesday when a bus carrying them to the Valley Forge Jamboree caught fire on the Turnpike near here.

The scouts, members of Troop 4 of the Admiral Robert E. Peary Council, filed out of the bus in orderly manner, minutes before flames erupted under a back seat and destroyed the vehicle.

Paul F. McEvoy, of Nanty Glo, scoutmaster of the troop, said the first inkling of the fire came when smoke was seen rising from behind a rear seat.

The bus driver, Henry Nable, of Bellevue, stopped and pulled some smouldering insulation from the exhaust pipe, then resumed the journey.

But Nable later stopped his bus and ordered the scouts to file out when more smoke was seen. The boys emptied the bus and removed luggage stored in the underside of the vehicle.

Syrian Border Clash Reported as 'Grave'

JERUSALEM, Israel (UP)—Israel officials described the Syrian border situation today as "grave" and there were reports the Soviet Union was urging Syria on to further attacks on Israeli villages.

But the officials said it was unlikely Tuesday's 10-hour artillery duel would precipitate an all out war; observers thought it more likely Israeli troops might attack, occupy and destroy the Syrian positions then retire across the border into Israel.

Syrian and Israeli troops bombarded each other for 10 hours Tuesday across their mountainous farmland frontier. The fighting did not end until United Nations truce observers ordered a sixth cease fire. Each side blamed the other.

Israeli sources said the battle started when Israeli police attempted to investigate a strip of no man's land illegally plowed up by Syrian farmers last week. They said Syrian troops opened up with artillery and mortars and that Israel was forced to reply.

(The Syrian account was different. A spokesman in Damascus said the duel started when an Israeli force equipped with armored cars entered Syrian territory. He said Israel ignored a U. N. cease fire after the Syrians obeyed it and that Syrian troops were forced to resume firing in self defense.)

The Israeli army reported on Israeli civilian killed and seven wounded in the fighting. (A Syrian spokesman in Damascus said there were no Syrian military casualties but that two Arab women and two children were wounded.)

One Method to Eliminate Polio Researcher Says

CINCINNATI (UP) — Dr. Albert B. Sabin, nationally known University of Cincinnati researcher on polio, said today there was only one method for the elimination of infantile paralysis.

Dr. Sabin, addressing the International Pollomyelitis Congress in Geneva, Switzerland, said the one method was to make the human intestinal tract immune to reinfection.

The University of Cincinnati scientist, a professor of research pediatrics in the college of medicine, has been working many years on long-lasting immunity to polio by oral administration of highly-diluted doses of live polio virus strains.

Dr. Sabin, in a speech prepared for delivery at the congress, said the real issue of his polio inoculation was its safety.

The Salk anti-polio serum consists of dead virus injected into the blood stream.

Dr. Sabin pointed out that tests have shown the Salk killed virus does not alter the intestinal tract's susceptibility to infection and does not influence the dissemination of polio viruses in the community.

"It is obvious," Dr. Sabin said, "that more work, time and experience will ultimately teach us the best way to eliminate poliomyelitis as a threat to human well-being."

Manu-Mine President Denies Flatly 'Pike Swindle Charge

By ANTHONY R. CANNIFF

HARRISBURG (UP) — Manu-Mine Co. president Charles W. Stickler Jr. today is scheduled to undergo cross - examination by prosecuting attorneys on his denials of any "swindle" in his firm's work for the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission.

Stickler, the first of the nine defendants to testify on his own behalf, categorically denied Tuesday that he had entered into any "improper agreements" either with members of the Turnpike Commission or with other members of his firm.

Stickler replied "absolutely not" to each of the questions asked by chief defense counsel Earl V. Compton concerning whether he had entered into any "agreements" with each of the eight other defendants with whom he is accused of conspiring to defraud the commission "of millions of dollars."

He defended his firm's work under a 1955 contract with the commission as "mandatory" to prevent subsidence of the Northeastern Extension roadway where it traverses the anthracite fields in Luzerne and Lackawanna counties.

In support of his contention, Stickler pointed to the state highways system in the northeastern coal region, where he said some 240 cases of mine-subsidence had caused destruction of public roads.

He said the commission's policy "didn't include the taking of calculated risks" in building the super-highway. The seven million dollars paid by the commission for Manu-Mine's flushing work, Stickler said, was aimed at giving the roadway "maximum support."

"The work of stabilizing the surface had to be done," he told the jury. "For the location, it was mandatory."

The Commonwealth charges that the firm conspired with five top commission officials, including Stickler's uncle (by marriage) then commission chairman Thomas J. Evans, to defraud the commission by unnecessary "made work" under the contract.

Stickler pointed out that his uncle, who is also on trial, left the commission post in July, 1955, and he said that 85 per cent of the mine-filling work was performed during the tenure of Evans' successor, G. Franklin McSorley.

He said the commission could have terminated the contract "at any time, without notice," but did not until February, 1956—a year after the project was begun—after paying the firm almost seven million dollars.

In a counter-suit, the Commonwealth is attempting to recover almost nine million dollars it paid to the firm under three separate contracts. Both suits are pending in Dauphin County Court, where the court has postponed hearings on the grounds that they may tend to prejudice the conduct of the criminal trial.

VFW to Convene Tomorrow

HARRISBURG (UP) — Thousands of Pennsylvania's ex-servicemen began pouring into the state capitol city today for the three-day 38th annual encampment of the state Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Top national, state, civil and armed forces leaders are slated to address the annual meeting which this year is based on the theme "Defense Means Freedom." The convention will wind up Saturday with the annual, colorful parade of VFW units representing all sections of the state.

At preliminary sessions tonight the organization's service committee will consider proposals to get behind plans calling for pensions for all World War I veterans ranging from $120 a month for overseas veterans at the age of 62.

(Vincent LaRiccia, former commander of Allison-Lescanac Post 1190, Veterans of Foreign Wars, of Monessen, is attending the convention, serving on the Americanization and Civil Defense committee. Committee chairman is Judge Michael A. Musmanno, State Superior Court justice.)

A second resolution to be considered would call for changes in the federal Social Security law to give social security benefits to additional veteran pensioners.

When the main sessions open Thursday, Gov. George M. Leader is slated to welcome the delegates. The same night Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, is slated to be the principal speaker at the annual VFW dinner meeting.

Among the other invited speakers at various sessions are a host of military and naval figures including Maj. Gen. Alfred B. Denniston; Brig. Gen. Terrence P. Finnegan and Rear Admiral S.R. Edson. Morton Fromm, Lock Haven, state VFW commander, said the accent on the military, is aimed at "awakening citizens everywhere to the all-important problems involved in the retention of American freedom and survival if the nation is embroiled in war."

U. S. Sen. Edward Martin is slated to address the veterans at a Friday morning session.

Friday night 14 drum and bugle corps and bands will compete in what the VFW bills as its "Million Dollar Pageant of Drums." The competition will include former national and state championship outfits such as the Westshoreman of Wormleysburg which captured nationwide honors in 1952 and the Archer-Eppler aggregation from Upper Darby which duplicated the feat in 1954.

Leader Vetoes Bill Prohibiting Twp. Annexation

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader has vetoed legislation which would have made annexation of second class townships by larger municipalities nearly impossible.

The governor late Tuesday pictured the measure as a "step backwards" in solving a pressing community problem. The bill would have prohibited the annexation of a second class township or any portion of it by a city, borough or township without the consent of the electors of the entire township to be annexed.

Gov. Leader said the requirement of voter approval of the entire township "as a practical matter, would put an end to annexation." He added that annexation was not the total solution "to the vexing problems confronting our metropolitan areas" but it can be used constructively to solve community problems of growth and development.

Present law allows a third class city to annex a portion of a township upon petition of the taxable inhabitants of the area to be added. Boroughs may annex adjacent territory in second class townships upon petition of a majority of the landowners.
